Over 110 food outlets sealed

KARACHI: The city administration has launched a crackdown on eateries and tea shops for encroaching roads and footpaths to make their seating arrangements and sealed 119 such establishments across the metropolis.

The action is being taken in compliance with the directives of Sindh Chief Secretary Asif Hyder Shah, who ordered removal of all obstructions from public spaces to ease movement of vehicles and pedestrians.

According to a press release, the ongoing campaign against restaurants and food outlets placing chairs and tables on roads is part of a broader initiative to enhance civic order and promote a disciplined urban environment across the province. —Dawn Report

THIS WEEK 50 YEARS AGO

Asad Amanat Ali, Hamid Ali, art and Diwali

By Peerzada Salman

IT was a week marked by a series of cultural activities. On Nov 3, 1975 this newspaper carried a picture of two young vocalists accompanying a prominently-placed news item. It read: a couple of days back, a large number of music lovers at the Arts Council in Karachi enjoyed the performance of Asad Amanat Ali Khan and Hamid Ali Khan, the two budding talents from Ustad Akhtar Husain Khan's family. It was the first public performance of Asad — the son of Ustad Amanat Ali Khan, and Hamid, the youngest son of Ustad Akhtar Husain Khan — in the city. They gave a quality performance tackling all sophisticated modes of music with confidence. During their three-hour stint on stage, they rendered raga magashi and a thumri sung by Ustad Amanat Ali, Kab aa'o gey. They also presented ghazals of which Insha ji utho, Ye aarzu thi tujhe and Kaisey guzri hai jawani were particularly appreciated by the audience. Not just that, the two youngsters played instruments such as sur mandal, tanpura, sarangi and tabla.Sindh's Education and Cultural Affairs Minister Pyarali Allana was the chief guest on the occasion.

The provincial minister was in the news the same day again — and later on one more occasion — when it came to light that the project report for setting up a college of fine arts and design in Karachi had been approved at a meeting. The sketch and the master plan would be ready by end of December. The meeting, with Mr Allana in the chair, approved to give admissions to matriculates [to the college] for a three-year diploma and a four-year degree course.

If that was not enough to satiate Karachiites appetite for art, on Nov 7, an exhibition of 30 paintings by Nargis Khalid was inaugurated by Mr Allana at the Arts Council. In her eighth show, the artist had tried to strike a balance between two genres — abstract and realism — holding them together by using bold and rigid lines, at the same time ensuring that her division of surface was more synthetic than analytical. Addressing the guests, the minister said the proposed college of fine arts would be completed in two years, adding that the federal government had agreed to give grant-in-aid to run the institution on the pattern of the National College of Arts, Lahore.

The city's pluralistic character also came to the fore when on Nov 3 Diwali was celebrated by the Hindu community. Special events were held in the morning under the auspices of the District Schedule Caste Federation and other religious organisations of the community. A variety of programmes arranged for the day included distribution of sweets and singing bhajans as temples were illuminated at night. Radio Pakistan Karachi featured a special show on Diwali.

And on Nov 5, the province's education secretary, Syed Pannah Ali Shah, claimed that the provincial government would shortly embark on a programme of financial assistance to libraries in Sindh. He said that while opening the book issuance and renewal system at Khaliqdina Hall Library. Good old days!

SHC-mandated committee inspects Karachi Zoo to assess animals' health

KARACHI: A committee constituted by the Sindh High Court (SHC) on Sunday visited the Karachi Zoo to check the physical and mental health of female brown bear Rano and other animals kept in the zoo.

During the visit, the committee members inspected various enclosures, observed animal behaviour, and evaluated their overall health conditions.

The objective of the visit was to ensure that the animals are being kept in accordance with prescribed welfare standards and to identify any areas that may require improvement.

The zoo administration extended full cooperation to the visiting committee. The team provided detailed briefings regarding ongoing animal care practices, feeding routines, veterinary check-ups, and maintenance of enclosures.

It was noted that regular veterinary support, proper nutrition, and improved hygiene measures have contributed positively to animal welfare.

However, the committee also observed a few areas for further enhancement and recorded specific recommendations to ensure continued compliance with animal care standards and to further uplift the zoo environment.

These observations will be formally presented to the SHC in the upcoming report for appropriate consideration.

The zoo administration reaffirmed its commitment to maintaining international standards of animal welfare, transparency, and cooperation with all relevant authorities to ensure a safe, healthy, and good environment for all animals under its care.

On Oct 17, the SHC had ordered the committee to visit the Karachi Zoo and prepare a detailed report about number of animals being kept at the zoo as well as physical and mental health of such animals.

It had also directed the KMC and others to shift Rano to a sanctuary in the federal capital in two weeks as authorities sought more time for the relocation of the brown bear.

The SHC noted that the issue was not of one bear but hundreds of animals being kept in captivity, apparently just for the entertainment of people. —APP

Fundraiser held for breast cancer hospital

KARACHI: The Friends of Pink Ribbon Karachi Chapter on Sunday hosted its 7th Annual Fundraiser in support of the Pink Ribbon Breast Cancer Hospital.

A Qawwali Night by Basit Ali, the event has received overwhelming support from corporate sponsors, philanthropists, and entrepreneurs across Karachi.

The event was held to raise funds for the completion of the Surgical and Oncology Wards at the Pink Ribbon Breast Cancer Hospital, which is the country's first dedicated breast cancer facility, in Lahore.

The hospital is 99 per cent complete and already provides free consultations, clinical examinations, 3D mammography, etc. Once fully functional, it will serve over 40,000 underprivileged women each year, offering comprehensive, free-of-cost care from diagnosis to treatment — chemotherapy, radiation and surgery all under one roof.

For the seventh consecutive year, the Avari family has generously sponsored the venue and dinner at Avari Towers, demonstrating steadfast commitment to the cause, said a spokesperson the Friends of Pink Ribbon Karachi Chapter.

"All proceeds from the event will directly fund the completion of the hospital's surgical and oncology wards. Each contribution brings us closer to offering hope, healing, and dignity to thousands of women battling breast cancer," the spokesperson added.

Pakistan has the highest incidence of breast cancer in Asia, with one in every nine women likely to develop the disease during her lifetime. Each year, approximately 90,000 new cases are diagnosed and over 40,000 women die due to late detection and limited access to treatment.

"Early diagnosis can save countless lives," Pink Ribbon Pakistan founder Omer Aftab said and added: "With timely screening, the chances of successful treatment exceed 90pc. Our mission is to ensure that every woman, regardless of background, has access to awareness, diagnosis, and care."—Dawn Report
